Culberson set to fly

by Ell-Sean Smith
 Berkeley's Chareise Culberson plays inside for the 'Jackets, but the opposition should prepare to see plenty more of the athletic six-footer outside of the paint as she goes about the process of expanding her offensive repertoire. College coaches like what they see from the Berkeley star both on the court and in the classroom. [details]

Nelson is breaking out

by Kevin McCarthy
 Boise State football coach Chris Petersen is a native of Yuba City and easily arguable as the top sports figure connected to the area. Not that he's worried but the leader of the much celebrated program is gaining some competition in 6-foot-7 senior Zach Nelson, who is ...

Turner on a roll

by Jerry Meyer
 2011 four-star prospect Josiah Turner is scoring at a torrid rate this year. He is also picking up offers and increased recruiting attention. A 6-foot-3, 175-pound combo guard, Turner is averaging 30 points per ...

Taylor is available

by Kevin McCarthy
 Oakland High junior TJ Taylor very early on liked what he saw down at Santa Clara and decided to link his name to the Bronco basketball program while still a sophomore. But that decision is on hold as Taylor ...

Culberson set to fly

Eli-Sean Smith
NorCalPreps.com Basketball Analyst

Berkeley's Chareise Culberson plays inside for the 'Jackets, but the opposition should prepare to see plenty more of the athletic six-footer outside of the paint as she goes about the process of expanding her offensive repertoire.

Message Boards

NCP's No. 3-rated junior (and No. 26 nationally), Culberson is blessed with the ability to defend any position on the floor. An automatic double-double whenever she steps on the court, Culberson was described in a previous scouting report by NCP as a "classic power forward" and she has a great inside game.

Berkeley isn't a tall squad so Culberson is sorely needed to play in the paint, but she can more than handle her own from the wing as a small forward. Chareise can knock down the open look, but she and AAU coach Leroy Hurt both agree that her face-up game will need improvement because the wing is where she will more than likely spend her days and nights at the next level.

"My team needs me inside," said Culberson. The Berkeley coaching staff holds the same sentiment as Culberson says, "I have the green light to take more shots on the perimeter because the coaches want to see me become more aggressive on offense."

Her offensive skills, and the improvements she is making to her game, will only enhance her reputation as one of the best juniors in the country because she can defend any position that comes her way. Her defensive know-how is verified by the fact that, along with fellow top-rated junior Brittany Boyd, Culberson has spearheaded a defense that is allowing a mere 41 points a game for an 18-3 squad.

Chareise aspires to be a Criminologist in college and she has earned a 3.3 GPA in AP courses. Coaches like what they see from the Berkeley star in the classroom and on the court so she will have quite the choice to make later this year as the entire Pac-10 conference has shown high interest.
